

Protecting Yourself and Your Family from Infectious Disease at Home and Abroad

Featuring Rebecca A Dillingham, MD, MPH

Wednesday, June 7 | 3:30-5:00pm

Sentara Martha Jefferson Hospital Café, 4th Floor

Join the Martha Jefferson Hospital Foundation Board of Directors for a special event and reception with infectious disease physician and public health expert Dr. Rebecca Dillingham. She will provide guidance on how to stay safe this summer, whether you're traveling abroad and wondering about vaccinations, or staying home and hoping to avoid tick-borne illnesses in your backyard. Dr. Dillingham will answer all your questions about how to prepare well, so you can relax and enjoy whatever summer vacation brings.

Please join us for a brief reception following the presentation.

About our Speaker

Dr. Rebecca Dillingham, MD, MPH has a passion for the care of people with HIV (PWH) and Hepatitis C. She has published more than 100 peer-reviewed manuscripts and has been awarded numerous teaching, mentoring, clinical service, and innovation awards. Her research projects have included the development of mobile phone-based technology to support vulnerable populations living with chronic diseases, especially HIV, and the development and testing of delivery models for hepatitis C care for people struggling with opioid addiction, especially in rural areas.
